

The first acupuncture session lasts one and a half to two hours. It begins with an in-depth interview and assessment including the palpation of the radial pulses and viewing of the tongue. Acupuncture is administered after the interview during the first session and may include: heat therapy, tui-na (Chinese massage), and herbal recommendations. Subsequent sessions last one hour and may also include the therapies mentioned above.